This event focused on providing information on recent research and practice into motivation of students.

Part I: Workshop. Professor Akira Kubota introduced his former student, Professor Katsuyuki Konno from Shizuoka Institute of Science and Technology, as a dedicated researcher on the difficult to grasp topic of motivation. Professor Katsuyuki Konno then presented motivation through two main theoretical frameworks and after having participants exchange ideas, offered valuable insights into classroom practices based on motivation research.

Part II: Group work. After the coffee break participants broke into groups of 4 and brainstormed ideas related to motivation emerging from the previous talk. A reporter in each group then shared the most salient points with the rest of the audience.
